ABSTRACT

A method and apparatus for activating an object for highlighting during a presentation includes recognizing a spoken activation word. An activation link is invoked when the activation word is recognized, and includes an activation action taken. The presentation 10 is prepared by designating a portion for highlighting by association with the activation link, and the activation word. The activation action includes substitution of the designated portion with another object, activating a multimedia object, changing a background color, applying a graphic effect, or the like to the designated portion.
